What is a Mentor's job role?

A Mentors job role is to: Inspire, educate, guide and encourage.

A Mentor's role primarily is to encourage self-discovery. They never make decisions on your behalf, especially with business operations. Instead, they empower you with the tools necessary to make your own with confidence. Whilst they have a business acronym; their approach is very different to that of a business coach or consultant. In essence, they work with you; not for you. A Mentor will help you achieve your goals faster and with far more certainty.

The standard procedure of The Mentor Program includes:

- Step 1. Situation analysis: looking at current circumstances and available resources.
- Step 2. Goal plan: what are you trying to achieve, timeframe and purpose?
- Step 3. Action plan: It includes strategy options, milestones, timeline and accountability.
- Step 4. Review: Regular review of actions implemented and measured progress.

Many sole business owners confess, it is the accountability for their intended actions they regard as a very large contributing factor toward achieving success. They also cite the luxury of access to real knowledge when needed, as a very valuable resource.

About the Mentor Program:

The Mentor Program is always delivered in three-month engagements. An initial consultation identifies the areas that would contribute most to the client's progress for that particular three-month block. A step-by-step action plan is then mutually developed with the client, including review indicators for the period.

Monthly Mentor meetings are scheduled at the client's convenience of time and location. In addition to these meetings, telephone and email support are also available for assistance with implementing any of the action points.

How to get started?

Total investment for a Three-month Mentor Program is $495.

This is invoiced in advance and includes the services outlined and workbook. Additional resource materials are available for purchase if required.
